Bob or as I called you pops, I am truly blessed that I got to meet you. I loved spending every weekend that you came to visit. You are an amazing father, brother and man. I will never forget all the times you called me dork and we just laughed about it. I will never forget the last hug and kiss on the forehead that you gave me before going to bed when we were visiting you. You have been an amazing father to Danielle, Sami, and Tyler. You treated me as if I were your own which meant a lot to me and my family. Im glad we got to see you one more time. I wish I could still see the that big smile one more time. You will always be missed and will always be in my heart.

It's been many years since I've seen my nephew Bobby. Tom and I were planning to visit Bob while in Florida this past May, but we were unable to go to Florida because of a sick family member. Sadness fills my heart, especially for my sister, Nancy, and Bobby's children, Danielle, Sami and Tyler. May The Lord comfort and bless those of you who are grieving, and may He be ever so near to your hearts. Bobby's Aunt Linda

I miss you so much my friend. The guidance you gave me, the times we sat around talking about love and the women in our lives. The times we sat in pool just relaxing, thanks to you Suzie is a float crazy fur baby. The times you worked on my car, built my fence, even when I went to visit parents, you and the other hero came and worked on it. The times you called me, just to come hang with Tiffany so you could get work done. She and I would just sit back and watch but mainly we were your gophers and gave support. I remember when we all came from Ga. my daddy always told me to make sure ya'll took care of me, ya'll did so many times. You are a great friend and man. The ones that have been left behind will be sad but we will smile every time you cross our thoughts. I am sure Bob and Billy were waiting at the gates with open arms. I love you.

Daddy, Where do I start? I want you to know that I love you so much, too much, and I can't bear to acknowledge the truth. I miss you like crazy. I want my daddy back. I want that big, strong, happy, loving man to come back through that door and wrap his arms around me. I keep wanting to call you and tell you what's going on and to get advice about this situation and I can't. It's so hard to think that I have to go on without you here. I can't feel your touch or hear your voice or even see your smile that always brightened up my day. I'm 27; I'm too young to lose you. You haven't met your grandchildren and I can't bear the thought of them not having you in their lives, even though they don't exist yet. You didn't even get a chance to walk me down the aisle for my wedding day. I can't get my head around the fact that you just disappeared. No warning. Stupid heart. My world caved in with one short, incomprehensible phonecall from Sami. I just fell to my knees and screamed "WHY" for hours. I am so thankful that I at least had the chance to talk to you the day of, and tell you that I love you and miss you! That's the only thing really that is keeping me sane through all of this. Nothing's OK any more, Dad. My life has changed forever, now. You didn't want this and I know it's not your fault. I just don't understand how this could happen after you just left the doctors' a week before and they said you were great. I wanted to let you know that you'd be so proud of us kids. We all came together and we've been so strong. We're obviously not OK without you. But, I guess we will be. You made this unit so tight that it's unbreakable. I will always be grateful for being able to call you my father. You were the best daddy any girl could ever ask for and I can only hope to bring my future family up in the same way. I'm sorry that I wasn't there, Dad, and I'm sorry for all the things I should have told you but didn't. But, I suspect you knew them anyway. I love you more than words can ever express and I can only wait for the time that I get to see you again. Love, Me (Daddy's Little Girl)
